THE STATE OF WISCONSIN.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

BY THE GOVERNOR.

In harmony with the praiseworthy custom of expressing gratitude for the blessings vouchsafed during the year past, and in conformity with the proclamation of the president of the United States, I, Jeremiah M. Rusk, governor of the state of Wisconsin, do hereby designate and appoint Thursday, the 29th day of November, instant, as a day of general thanksgiving. And I do recommend that the people of the state lay aside their usual avocations on that day, and in their accustomed manner give thanks to an All-Wise Providence for the numerous bounties enjoyed during the year, and ask the continuance of prosperity to the state and happiness in the homes of all the people.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the state of Wisconsin to be affixed.

Done at the city of Madison, [JANESVILLE] this seventh day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three.

By the Governor: J. M. RUSK.
By the Secretary: ERNEST G. TIMME, Secretary of State.

Massachusetts will relish her turkeys on Thanksgiving.

The old ticket is still hopeful although it got severely punished in '76.

St. Louis is now looking up. It has one live man who has settled there—William T. Sherman.

The patience of the country will soon be taxed to its utmost. Congress will meet in a month, and will continue in session till midsummer of next year.

It has been announced that "Congressman Frank Harl, of Ohio, announces that he will set the tariff ball to rolling on the very first day of the next congress." And thereby commit, as usual, a democratic blunder.

The Milwaukee Journal says: "The shelving of Butler and Mahone will be considered a great day's work by many people." And the Madison Democrat responds, "so say we all." But why didn't the Madison Democrat say so before Butler was knocked down by a republican majority?

It cost General Butler $125,000 to run his campaign in Massachusetts. Putting this and his defeat together, it would seem that the price of a vote in that state is much above the price in Indiana. An Indiana democrat thinks he is doing splendidly when he can get two dollars for his vote.

Carpenter has been released on giving $10,000 bail. He has left Lincoln for the east to escape the threats and the din of condemnation that surrounded him at his home. Next January he will be called before the grand jury and possibly may be held for trial. Whether guilty or not his life will hardly be safe at Lincoln.

It will be rather quiet in Massachusetts since Butler has been laid on the shelf. The Springfield Republican touches the popular chord when it exclaims: "Good-by, Ben! You were so enervating in your devility, we shall be kind of lonesome without you."

According to statistics carefully compiled, there are thirty schools in the United States for the instruction of the blind, and those have 593 teachers, and last year they had 2,148 pupils. The schools have libraries containing 22,991 volumes, an increase during the year of 2,007. Their grounds, buildings, and apparatus are valued at $3,915,000; the total expenditure for the year was $258,459; receipts, $738,961, of which $181,185 came from state or municipal appropriations.

The commissioners of the public lands of this state have set aside the land sales of the afternoon of the 4th of September, and also on the 5th and 6th of the same month. From an editorial note in the Journal, it appears that nearly all the sales in Sawyer and Price counties are effected, and very largely those in Douglas and Chippewa counties; that there are also other lands in Taylor, Washburn, Clark and Dunn counties, the aggregate number of acres being ten thousand. It seems that a number of bidders had formed a pool to keep down the prices, and although this was done, the average price per acre received by the state was greater than at any previous sale of the public lands in this state.

The Christmas number of Harper's Magazine promises to bring together the most remarkable gathering of authors and artists ever grouped under one (paper) roof. The former include, among others, George William Curtis, John G. Whittier, Miss Thackeray, (Mrs. Ritchie), E. P. Roe, William Black, W. D. Howells, George H. Boughton, Austin Dobson, Charles Reade, Edward Everett Hale, and Charles Dudley Warner; while among the artists are E. A. Abbey, James C. Beard, George H. Boughton, F. S. Church, Frederic Dielman, Alfred Fredericks, A. B. Frost, W. Hamilton Gibson, Alfred Parsons, Howard Pyle, C. S. Reinhart, W. L. Sheppard, and Jessie Curtis Shepherd. There will also be illustrations from paintings by G. F. Watts, R. A., and from unpublished sketches by Thackeray, Frederic Walker, and Dante Gabriel Rossetti. The number will include four plate-paper pages in addition to the usual size of the magazine.

BROCKWAY, THE FORGER.

The New York Police Have Him "Dead to Rights."

Unearthing a Scheme of Bond Forgery of Unusual Magnitude—Some of His Former Exploits in That Line.

New York, Nov. 12.—William C. Brockway, the notorious bond forger, and two of his accomplices, Lewis Martin and Nathan B. Foster, have been arrested by Central office detectives on a charge of forgery. For the past two months Brockway has been noticed by detectives acting in a very suspicious manner. A few weeks ago Brockway engaged apartments at 24 Lexington avenue, and at the same time he hired apartments at 270 West Eleventh street. The detective who had been assigned to keep a close watch upon his movements, learned that he was daily in the habit of visiting bankers, printers and lithographic houses. On Saturday, the detectives became satisfied that the time had arrived for decisive action, and Inspector Byrnes directed a raid to be made upon the apartments occupied by Brockway at 24 Lexington avenue and No. 270 West Eleventh street. On entering the rooms occupied by Brockway the detectives found a complete set of machinery for the forgery of bonds, and also a quantity of type, dies, plates, and everything necessary for the duplication of these bonds. A roll of bonds which had scarcely been run off, was also found. These bonds were perfect counterfeits of the bonds issued by the Morris & Essex Railroad company, of the denomination of $1,000 per cent. construction mortgage bonds of 1901; plates, printed notes, and various material for the issuing of $1,000 gold bearing bonds of the Central Pacific Railroad company, series B, were also found. The stamp necessary for the payment of interest on the bonds in London, was also seized, with type in form notifying holders that the interest was paid at the banking house of J. Speyer & Bros., London, at the rate of 49 pence sterling per cent. There was also found the type set for an endorsement for the back of the bonds, as follows: "Central Pacific Railroad company, California and Oregon division, 6 per cent, 20-year gold bonds of $1,000." There was also in type the following:

"We do hereby certify that this bond is one of the within described $1,000 bonds of like date secured by mortgages, executed and delivered to us by David S. Dodge, one of the trustees within named having died, Philip C. Calhoun has been duly nominated and appointed trustee in his place in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage."

The bonds are magnificently executed, a microscopic examination failing to reveal the slightest trace of the delicate two lines and shading of the heads upon the bonds being perfect itself, and must have cost considerable time and money. A raid was also made by the detectives upon room No. 84, at the St. James hotel, where was found a package of bonds of the Morris & Essex 7 per cent mortgage coupon bonds, ready to be put upon the market, wanting only the names of Samuel Sloan, president, and Charles E. Palmer, treasurer. A genuine 7 per cent $1,000 bond of the Morris & Essex Railroad company, series B, No. 302, $100 in money and a number of letters, stamps and drawings of different series of bonds were found on Brockway's person when he was arrested. After the raid had been made in West Eleventh street, Foster and Martin were arrested on Lexington avenue. On Martin were found five $100 bills, some letters and papers showing him to have moved in the best of society. His suit at the St. James was an elegant one, and he was regarded as a leading man in sporting circles. Chief Drummond, of the secret service, who assisted in making the arrests, learned that Martin furnished the money for printing the spurious bonds. The police do not believe that any of the bonds have yet been disposed of. Brockway was born in Connecticut, and is about 60 years old. He studied chemistry in Yale college under Prof. Stillman. Later in life he learned the trade of a printer and electrotypist. In 1853 he got five years for taking an impression of a genuine plate of the State bank of Connecticut, but escaped after serving three years. After that he went to New York, where he got out of a $200,000 bond by Jay Cooke & Co.'s banking house being victimized to the extent of $5,000 of the spurious bonds. In 1871 Brockway got up a $500 treasury note of the series of 1869, in connection with Hank Hall, Lewis Martin, Charles H. Smith, and Thomas Dillard. From this time up to his arrest he seems to have been engaged in counterfeiting bonds and other securities, nominating upon him on account of his surrendering some forged plates. Both Martin and Foster have also been engaged for several years in counterfeiting. All the prisoners are now locked up at police headquarters and will be taken to the tombs.

Death on the Rail.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 12.—Barney McGee, of Springfield, Ohio, had his head completely severed from his body on the Indiana, Bloomington & Western road, three miles west of this city.

Patrick Cross, of Cleveland, fell between the cars on the Bee line, two miles east of here. Both legs were cut off and his head badly cut and bruised. He will probably not survive.

Pittsburg, Nov. 12.—John Dorgan, aged 70, while walking on the tracks of the Panhandle railroad, was run over and killed by an engine.

CARMI, Ill., Nov. 12.—While walking along the track in this city in an intoxicated condition, Lewis Trammel was struck by a passing train, tearing the right arm completely from the shoulder, and inflicting a wound on his head. Trammel is a farmer, and has a family. His recovery is very doubtful.

Killed in Self-Defense.

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 12.—About 7 o'clock p. m., Deputy City Marshal William Glass, was in a saloon opposite the market house, when he saw a man, an policeman, entered, and, seeing Glass, drew a bowie knife and made a lunge at him. Glass drew his revolver and fired one shot to intimidate Ravel, but Ravel made another pass at him, cutting him in the arm. Glass then shot him twice, the balls going clear through his body, killing him instantly. The killing was undoubtedly the result of an old grudge between the two men, who have had several rows. Glass surrendered. A jury of inquest rendered a verdict of killed in self-defense, and Glass was admitted to $200 bail.

Courbet Wants Reinforcements.

PANAMA, Nov. 12.—The statement is made in La France that Admiral Courbet has demanded reinforcements at once in order that his future operations may be attended with safety and with a prospect of success.

Withdrawing the Troops.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—It is expected that the withdrawal of British troops from Egypt will be completed within the next four weeks.

A WOMAN'S TRUST.

And How It Was Betrayed by a False Lover.

A Young Girl Deceived by a Mock Marriage—Two Days of Happiness and Then Desertion.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Nov. 12.—Last Monday morning a young couple arrived in the city on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, from Quincy, Ill., and went to the Union hotel, where they took dinner. The young man was A. J. Lessem, son of a wholesale dry-goods merchant of Quincy, and Miss Flora Stroud, a lady about 29 years of age. No one's attention would be attracted by the conduct or appearance of the young couple. Everything went smoothly until Wednesday evening the couple repaired to the Barrett house, the young lady being shown to room No. 80, and the young man to another. Lessem was to marry the girl. At 8 o'clock, per-purposed arrangement, a rather tall gentleman purporting to be a justice of the peace, and possessing the authority to perform the marriage ceremony, put in an appearance at room No. 80. Mr. Lessem and Miss Stroud stood up and were united in marriage. Following the ceremony the alleged justice of the peace congratulated the couple and departed, and the couple retired, thus completely shattering in the honeymoon. Everything went lovely until Wednesday morning, when Lessem told his bride of two nights and one day that he had another wife and that he would have to leave her for a day. He returned Wednesday night, and departed again Thursday morning, and left the bride a widow. The young bride was astonished to learn the bride was of course a widow, which aroused the suspicion in her mind that she had been betrayed. She consulted an attorney, to whom she exhibited the marriage certificate, and it was discovered at once to be fraudulent. This shed some light upon the case, and Miss Stroud fully realized the situation in which she had been placed.

Notwithstanding the fact the marriage ceremony was not performed by an authorized person, the marriage under the laws of Iowa is a legal and binding one, which Lessem was probably not aware of. The language of section 2,135 of the code of 1873, says: "Marriages solemnized with the consent of parties in any other manner than is herein prescribed are invalid; but the parties themselves, and all other persons aiding and abetting, shall be liable to the school fund for the sum of $50 each." On the other words, a mutual agreement between the parties in present to be husband and wife, followed by living as husband and wife for any length of time, long or short, constitutes a valid marriage.

The girl states Lessem and herself consented to the marriage and lived together for two days, and if this be true, the marriage is a valid one, though the parties are liable to forfeit $50 to the school fund.

A reporter interviewed the bride, Mr. Palmer and Mr. Andrews knew nothing about the case at all and were of course much surprised. They stated the lady had paid her bill herself and as far as they knew Lessem had not been in her room. After leaving from their astonishment the reporter was ushered up to room No. 59 and a gentle rap on the door led to the reply, "What is it?" The bride was informed that a reporter desired an interview, which she consented to, and in a few moments the reporter was admitted to the room. Miss Stroud, or rather Mrs. Lessem, is about 20 years of age, rather good-looking, is a blonde, and evidently of German extraction.

Her story is as follows: "Mr. Lessem and I were married in this room at 8 o'clock last Monday evening. I have been acquainted with him for about three months, during which time he was quite attentive and proposed marriage. His parents reside in Morris county, Illinois; my father is a farmer and resides near New Windsor. About four months ago I went to Quincy and secured employment as a dressmaker, and roomed at 207 Kentucky street. The reason he assigned for wanting to come to Burlington to have the marriage ceremony, I learned from him that he had been deceived by a false promise of marriage. He further said that in two years, when he was 27 years of age, he would become heir to a large sum of money left him by his grandfather, and that the marriage should be kept a secret until then. This I consented to. We came to Burlington Monday morning and were married at 8 o'clock by a tall young man, who claimed to be a justice of the peace, and later on he told me he was not a justice of the peace, but a lawyer. He was very well until Wednesday morning, when he told me he had another wife living, which I do not believe now, and that he had received word from his brother-in-law that he was coming after him and would bring his wife. He went away that morning and came back in the evening. We did not speak of the matter that night, and on Thursday he told him then to go home to his wife and I would go away. This (Friday) morning he left, and I determined to see a lawyer. I thought Mr. Lessem was honest in his proposals and really intended to marry me."

The girl further stated with a sob that she thought more of Lessem than she did for herself. Here she exhibited a letter from Lessem dated at Carthage, Ill., which she received recently, stating that he had been detained from the road, advising her to remain where she was, and he would return by 8 o'clock next Monday evening, and further that he had paid her hotel bill until that time, which Mr. Palmer states is incorrect.

She began crying and said: "Poor papa, I don't want him to know anything of this."

The girl is among strangers in a strange city, deserted and alone. Mr. Palmer said he would see that she did not suffer, and that her wants would be attended to. In the meantime the officers are looking for Lessem. The denouement of this episode as far as it has progressed cannot be foretold. Lessem's father is a wealthy merchant and the wronged girl may consent to a compromise of some character should her husband decide not to live with her.

COMMEMORATED.

The Four Hundredth Anniversary of Luther's Birth.

A Day Devoted to Its Observance All Over the World.

Europe and America Join in Doing Honor to the German Reformer.
The Festivities in Germany and Elsewhere.

ELKHART, Nov. 12.—Four hundred years ago Saturday, between 11 and 12 o'clock at night, Martin Luther was born here. The following day the ceremony of baptism was performed by mass and priest, when the child received the name of Martin, after the patron saint of that day. Sixty-three years later, the 15th of February, 1547, the great reformer died here. Of all the towns and villages throughout Protestant Germany where the memory of his birth was celebrated, none can vie in importance with this little place, which was the beginning and the end of the great reformer's life. Its chief points of interest are naturally above all others the two buildings in which Luther began and ended his life. In the popular belief, the house was formerly considered inviolable until a fire broke out August, 1857, by which the upper story was destroyed, but four years later the damage was entirely repaired by donations from all parts of Germany. Luther's birth-room, however, in the first story, was actually proved incontestable, and remains unscathed to this day.

At this place was the focus of the celebrations in Germany. A choir of 40,000 voices, aided by several military bands, swelled the strains of the Luther hymn, "Eino feste Burg ist unser Gott," the choruses rang out, and the town was literally covered with decorations of evergreen and hunting. A special beer was brewed for the occasion and motes and texts from Luther were engraved on the beer glasses. The address of the day was delivered by Dr. Hoegel, who at its conclusion announced that 20,000 letters were raised as the Luther hymn was sung by thousands of voices, and the people devoted the day to the memory of their great Protestant churchman.

Other European Points.
LONDON, Nov. 12.—Reports from all parts of Europe indicate that the celebration of the 400th anniversary of Luther's birth was widely observed. In Spain, at Madrid, Seville, Barcelona and a dozen other places the Protestants assembled in their churches, schools, and special commemorative services were held.

In Rome and at other places in Italy where there are Protestant communities the celebration was a novel feature in the land of the popes, and was appropriately observed. La Passaglia, a paper not at all tinged with the Protestant sympathies, devoted a leading editorial to the day, and said that Luther gave the world liberty. It traces to Luther the overthrow of the temporal power of the popes.

At St. Petersburg the day was celebrated in all the German churches. In this city a large meeting was held in Exeter hall, and special services in 300 of the churches, and at other points in Great Britain and Ireland the day was appropriately celebrated. Lord Shaftesbury presided at the Exeter hall meeting, at which Mr. Spurgeon was the principal speaker. At the cathedral of York a sermon on the life and work of the great reformer, at Westminster Abbey.

In Denmark the festival was celebrated throughout the country. In Germany, besides the monster celebrations at Berlin and Eisenach, the festivities at Hamburg, Bremen, Leipzig, Erfurt and Worms were notable demonstrations, and at Eisenach, a bust of Luther was unveiled at Hamburg, and a monument at Leipzig to Luther and Melancthon. At Erfurt, Eisenach and Nordhausen corner stones for monuments were laid with great ceremony.

In the United States.
NEW YORK.
New York, Nov. 12.—At full thirty churches in this city, seventeen in Brooklyn, and many in Jersey City and throughout Long Island, the preachers selected as their theme, various points in the life and teachings of Martin Luther, rendered timely by the 400th anniversary of his birth. The principal celebration in this city was at Steinway hall, where fully 3,000 people connected with the German Lutheran churches of this city and its suburbs assembled and participated in an enthusiastic service of song and praise, the exercises being conducted in German. The principal orator was the Rev. J. W. Mann, of Philadelphia. Prof. Felix Adler lectured before a large audience at Chickering hall on the lessons to be drawn from the standpoint of the society of ethical culture. The professor's address was a criticism rather than an eulogium and near the conclusion of his speech Mr. Adler said: "I would not have believed that I hold Martin Luther up as an idol here. If his heart was big, his mind was narrow, and he was steeped in all the prejudices of his time. He never got rid of the idea of a personal devil, and he ignored good works as useless. He clung with obstinate pertinacity to the doctrine of the final presence; denounced the persecuted Jews and sought to justify serfdom."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The 400th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther was very generally observed throughout the district. A union service was held at the Memorial Lutheran church, and the edifice was uncomfortably crowded. At the opening of the service an anthem was sung, of which the following words were repeated: "Gloria Patri" was then sung by the choir, and the apostle's creed recited by the congregation in concert. This was followed by the reading of the forty-sixth psalm and a prayer and hymn. Brief addresses were then delivered upon the following subjects were then delivered: "Luther and Calvin," by Rev. A. Bartlett, D. D.; "Luther and Civil Freedom," Hon. J. L. Strong, U. S. Sen.; "Luther and Religious Freedom," Rev. J. E. Rankin, D. D.; "Luther and Protestantism," Rev. S. H. Greene; "Luther in the Present," Rev. F. D. Power, President Garfield's late pastor; "Luther and Wesley," Rev. W. F. McKenney; and "Luther and the Future," by Rev. J. G. Barker, D. D. These were interspersed with singing by the choir, and at the finish the battle hymn, "Eino feste Burg" was rendered. After a hymn and the recitation of the Lord's prayer by the congregation, the congregation was dismissed with the benediction.

BOSTON.
Boston, Nov. 12.—The 400th anniversary of Luther's birth was celebrated in all the leading churches of this city and of New England. In the course of the regular Sunday services, the preachers as a rule preached on the reformer's life and teachings.

Haverhill and Lowell, Mass., gave an excellent concert in Music hall, producing Back's cantata, written in 1737, on the 200th anniversary of the act making Luther's religion the legal religion in Saxony, and based on Luther's chorale "Ein feste Burg." The old South and Central churches united with the Berkeley street church at the latter place, where a chorus of "little wanderers" sang a hymn in commemoration of the fact that Luther, when at the Franciscan school, of Magdeburg, sang in the street for his bread. Prof. W. J. Tucker, D. D., delivered an address on the work of Luther. His most striking thought was that the true Christian gospel expounded by Luther is a religion of the people and for the people, as against the gospel of science which says religion is but the survival of the fittest, and the gospel of culture which places the few before the many. Luther's work made all work for progress since possible. He not only that is most opposed to spiritual liberty at its crisis and culmination, and conquered it. Thus modern liberty was assured. Other speakers were Rev. J. T. Dwyer, formerly of Brooklyn, and Rev. William B. Wright.

PITTSBURGH.
Pittsburgh, Nov. 12.—The 400th anniversary of Luther's birth was celebrated by the German Lutherans in the Presbyterian church. The orchestra and a chorus of 100 voices assisted. At the Seventh Avenue Lutheran church a copy of Luther's translation of the scriptures, 234 years old, lay on the altar during services. The principal English service was held in the First English Lutheran church. The principal addresses were by Revs. Belfour, Passavant and Melhorn.

AT CHICAGO.
CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 12.—The four hundredth anniversary of Luther's birth was celebrated by Protestants throughout the city Sunday. Nearly all the Protestant churches had something to say about the great reformer, while at many of the churches special services were held in commemoration of his life and works. The greatest gathering of the day was at the church of the Holy Trinity, where a German service was held. Ten thousand persons were in the hall, and 2,000 were turned away from the doors. The exercises consisted mainly of song services. At Farwell hall there were some two thousand persons. As many collected in the evening at Central Music hall. Altogether the Lutherans and their confederates of other sects had a mighty jubilee. What with the Luther sermons in the course of the week, the church services on Saturday, and the children's Luther service on Sunday, one, if he lives in Chicago, must be very dull indeed who knows nothing about the priest of Eisenach.

AT OTHER POINTS.
At Milwaukee the Luther services attracted 14,000 persons and there was a choir of 500 voices. At Cincinnati Monsignor Capel treated the reformer from a papal standpoint, and the Music hall was crowded at the Protestant celebration. At Toronto a large audience listened to addresses by leading clergymen of the city. At Philadelphia services appropriate to the occasion were held in all the Protestant churches. Services were also held at Watertown, Wis.; Des Moines, Iowa; Baltimore, Md.; Toledo, Ohio; St. Louis, Mo.; Louisville, Ky., and various other places.

Sketch of Luther's Life.
The history of Martin Luther is familiar to all. He was born at Eisenach, Germany, in 1483, and 1507 was ordained as a priest. In 1509 he began lecturing, and his liberal thought soon took root and it grew against the over-strictness of the church. He had attained a position of prominence, and had drawn up a series of theses against the doctrine, one of which he nailed to the gate of the church at Wittenberg. The general purport of these theses was to deny the right of the pope to forgive sins, and the communion which followed their promulgation can better be imagined than described. In fact, he was summoned to Rome to answer for his action, but a decree was sent to Germany, subsequently a papal bull was issued against him, which was afterwards burned at the Elster gate of Wittenberg. Still later his writings were ordered burned by the diet of Worms, and he too appeared before that body. His firmness and demeanor before the diet, and the logic with which he held his position, and refused to retract, are matters of history, and since then his memory has not wanted for place in the hearts of the Protestants of the world, and his works live after him and adorn most of the libraries of the land. He married in 1525 one of nine nuns, who, under his teaching, emancipated themselves from their religious vows.

Nancy Landis' Story.
